

Doccept is a multi-user document management software that allows businesses to streamline business processes become better organized, more secure, and decidedly more efficient

In a report released by AIIM (Association for Information and Image Management), it was stated that "over 60% of all organizations are required to keep some of their records into the foreseeable future, even within the non-government sector."

In today's world, organizations of all sizes possess and manage a legacy of paper, electronic documents and correspondence. It is therefore essential for the success of the organization to:

- ⇒ Quickly search and retrieve the information located in the various documents.
- ⇒ Identify the author of any document or its associated changes quickly
- ⇒ Ensure that the document flow is aligned with the process flow of the organization
- ⇒ Protect documents from accidental or intentional destruction
- ⇒ Support audit and alert mechanisms for tracking and managing business processes

"Don't follow the data, Let the data follow you"

Industry study shows that:

- ⇒ Each individual in an administrative or managerial position spends an average of 15 hours in a week either looking or waiting for Information contained in a document, leading to loss of time and money.
- ⇒ Organizations on an average make 19 copies of each document needed for business use.
- ⇒ Of all paper documents that are handled each day in an average office, 90% are merely shuffled.

Kensium's Doccept helps organizations manage their data and files effectively, ensuring time and cost savings in the long run.

- ⇒ Sharing of documents across multiple locations – secure access outside of the office
- ⇒ Maintaining an audit trail and change history of important business documents
- ⇒ Security and backup of critical business documents
- ⇒ Identifying the latest version of a document
- ⇒ Time and effort wasted in recreating content that already exists somewhere within the organization

Imagine a scenario where users are notified the minute a new document that they are interested in is updated through an Email or SMS notification.
